

Islamochristiana* – Call for Papers

The Editorial Committee of Islamochristiana, published annually in Rome since 1975 by the Pontifical Institute for Arabic and Islamic Studies (PISAI), invites proposals for essays to be published in forthcoming volumes:

- St Paul and Islam
- The Contribution of Women to Islamic Religious Thought

We also welcome proposals in the broad fields of the study of Islam and of Christian-Muslim relations. For example, recent volumes have included essays in the following areas, among many others: Qur'ānic Studies; Islam and Society; Christian-Muslim Relations in History; Christian Theological Engagement with Islam; Christian-Arabic Studies.

Essays can be submitted in Arabic, English, French and Italian, and can be between 5,000 and 10,000 words long, including footnotes and bibliography.

Proposals of between 100-200 words should be submitted in the language in which the essay will be written. They should indicate the theme to be addressed, the main points of the argument, key publications to be engaged and how the essay would add to existing scholarship. If any part of the proposed essay has already been published, or there are plans to publish it elsewhere, in any language, this should be mentioned.

Any proposal should be submitted to islamochristiana@pisai.it.

Islamochristiana is published annually. In order to be included in the next volume essays must be submitted by 1 November 2026. Please indicate with your proposal the date by which you can submit your essay.

Islamochristiana is not a peer-reviewed journal but belongs to the highest category of academic journals in Italy – Classe A, Area 10.

Islamochristiana publishes a substantial section of book-reviews in every volume. Proposals for book-reviews may also be sent by email to islamochristiana@pisai.it.
